Kerk en Minima

helps our fellow man in need

The foundation Stichting Kerk en Minima Veenendaal is an interdenominational organization that offers a helping hand to our fellow human beings in need.

The foundation provides emergency aid, often on a one-time basis or helps to find structural solutions offered by other aid agencies.

When the local government or other agencies are unable to offer help, the foundation provides for material and immaterial help.

The foundation finds its inspiration in the Bible and considers itself to be one of the instruments to carry out the diaconal tasks of the church.

Assistance is only available to residents of the municipality of Veenendaal.

Adequate, fast and discreet

Kerk en Minima should like to do more than listening only. They want to help practically, adequately, quickly, discreetly and without unnecessary formalities.

Kerk en Minima offers help to people who live in Veenendaal and will help both church members and non-church members regardless of religion or nationality.

The people we assist are singles, single-parent families, individuals who have lost their jobs, elderly people with no or minimal pensions and people who cannot work.

Help in various forms

Kerk en Minima provides for both material and immaterial help when the local government or related agencies cannot (or can no longer) provide any assistance.

Kerk en Minima will help incidentally or provide temporary support with the intention to help the family or individual back on track.

Assistance may include:

- financial support in the form of small donations, gifts, or interest-free loans
- furniture or other practical needs
- referral to other forms of support or aid organisations
- Assistance in contacting the local government or related agencies

Support our foundation! You can also help us

We all know the concept of 'suffering in silence'. There are people who do need our help, but due to shame or embarrassment they do not have the courage or do not want to ask for help.

Please look around in your own neighbourhood, your church, your children's school, your clubs, etc. and get in touch when you notice people or families you think are in need of help.

Kerk en Minima can carry out its mission thanks to the donations of individuals, church members, parishioners, institutions, and collections held by several churches in Veenendaal. The foundation is entirely dependent on these donations and cannot continue its mission without these gifts.
